

Currently Dr Mamsie Motshekga-Sebolai is the Director : HRD at Tshwane University of Technology, and previously was Academic Director of PC Training and Business College, Corporate Affairs Executive at Educor and Teaching Advisor at Pretoria Technikon.

Over a period of years she has demonstrated an insightful understanding of Education, Training and Development systems nationally. She also understands teaching and learning processes across various organizational forms of the education enterprise. Her appointments in various leadership positions in both private and public institutions equipped her with skills in Organisational Management. Her involvement with regulatory and statutory issues has heightened awareness for compliance to regulatory requirements.

Her wealth of knowledge in respect of Education, training and development earned her the following awards:

1. The Vice-Chancellor's Medal: University of Pretoria: April 2003. The award was for recognition of her leadership and managerial competences in the Corporate Business World Int al Educor.
2. Tuks Alumni Lurette Award: University of Pretoria: November 2003.
3. The Rector's Acknowledgement Award 1998. The award was for the successful implementation and management at Technikon Pretoria, now Tshwane University of Technology.

Her recent paper on Talent Management in South African Universities of Technology "Woman in Leadership" explores the movement of women in Higher Education. In terms of her academic qualifications, her Degree and Teaching Diploma were obtained at the University of the North (now Limpopo University). She was a teacher for twelve years. She received her PhD (Education Management at University of Pretoria. Naspers Executive Programme (Management Development Programme for senior Management) at Stellenbosch Business School.